QUESTÃO 31

“Every educator is a teacher of reading,” the expression goes. That might be a difficult mantra to live by if you consider yourself a mathematician or historian. The truth is that despite your area of expertise, you will find yourself teaching reading and writing at some point during the day in middle or high school. You may be teaching reading to adolescents who struggle to read.

With the blitz of video gaming, social networking and texting, students are bombarded with information daily in multiple ways and settings. They are less interested in reading textbooks and course material and more interested in gathering information in a fast-paced, action-packed manner as they access all they need to know on phones, hand-held gaming devices, tablets or laptops. Moreover, teachers are faced with how to keep adolescents engaged with reading in today’s world and 21st-century classrooms.

It can be concluded from the text above that

- mathematicians and historians do not understand the expression “Every educator is a teacher of reading”.
- students do not have access to much information because of the blitz of video gaming, social networking and texting.
- the fact that textbooks have always been of students’ interest has not changed.
- keeping adolescents engaged with reading is an easy task.
- educators of all areas teach reading and writing.

QUESTÃO 32

It was not until Tracy was halfway back to Manhattan that the audacity of what she had done struck her. She giggled, and the giggle turned into a shaking, uncontrollable laughter, until she finally had to pull the car off onto the side of the road. She laughed until the tears streamed down her face. It was the first time she had laughed in a year. It felt wonderful.

Based on the text above, choose the correct option.

- Tracy was conscious of her audacity from the beginning of the car trip.
- It can be inferred from the text that Tracy had to pull off because she was laughing too much.
- It can be concluded from the expression “tears streamed down her face” (1.5) that Tracy was sad.
- It can be inferred from the text that Tracy is usually a happy person who laughs a lot.
- It was the first time Tracy was going to Manhattan.

QUESTÃO 33

Mr. Durrance’s shop was halfway up the village. It was on a corner site, had a few photographs displayed in the window, a couple of marriage groups, a kicking baby in a nudist condition on a rug, one or two bearded young men taken with their girls. None of the photographs were very good; some of them already displayed signs of age. There were also postcards in large numbers; birthday cards and a few special shelves arranged in order of relationships. To my Husband. To my Wife. One or two bathing groups. There were a few pocketbooks and wallets of rather poor quality and a certain amount of stationary and envelopes bearing floral designs. Boxes of small notepaper decorated with flowers and labeled For Notes.

According to the text above, chose the correct option.

- All photographs were taken recently.
- There were more pocketbooks and wallets than postcards.
- There were not any very good photographs in the description.
- There were only photographs, postcards, pocketbooks and wallets in the shop.
- The shop was located in the middle of a street.
This text refers to questions 34 and 35.

Reading comprehension is a multi-dimensional process that includes the reader, the text, and factors associated with the activity of reading. Most research and theories of comprehension are based primarily on research conducted with monolingual English speakers (L1). The present study was designed to investigate the cognitive and linguistic factors that have an influence on reading comprehension in English-as-a-Second-Language (ESL) speakers. The cognitive aspects of reading comprehension among L1 speakers and ESL speakers in the seventh grade were investigated. The performance of both groups was compared and the role of some relevant processes, including word reading, word reading fluency, phonological awareness, working memory, and morphological and syntactic awareness were assessed. Within this sample, three groups were examined: children with poor comprehension (PC), children with poor word reading and poor comprehension (poor readers, PR) and children with both good word reading and comprehension abilities (good comprehenders, GC). The results demonstrated that a variety of cognitive processes, such as working memory and phonological, syntactic, and morphological awareness are important for reading comprehension and compromised in poor comprehenders. The GC group performed better than the PC group on all of the cognitive measures.

QUESTÃO 34

The objective of the text above is

A to describe in a few words an investigation and its results on the cognitive and linguistic factors that have an influence on reading comprehension in English-as-a-Second-Language (ESL) speakers.
B to detail the cognitive aspects of reading comprehension among L1 speakers and ESL speakers in the seventh grade.
C to raise awareness about the importance of reading comprehension.
D to comprehend a study on how comprehension depends on a variety of phonological, memory and linguistic processes.
E to prove that reading comprehension is a multi-dimensional process.

QUESTÃO 35

Concerning the text, choose the correct option.

A It can be inferred that the GC group performing better than the PC group was not expected.
B Research and theories of comprehension are more commonly based on English as a Second Language.
C The group of students that was investigated was from kindergarten.
D Some aspects used as comparison between L1 and ESL speakers were word reading, word reading fluency, phonological awareness, working memory, and morphological and syntactic awareness.
E The sample group was divided in three, according to the ages of their members.

Based on the comic strip above, choose the correct option.

A ‘Pick up’ in the comic strip means make a place tidy.
B Calvin did not understand his mother’s question.
C It is impossible to lift a room, therefore, it is impossible to pick up a room.
D Calvin thinks his mother is not sentimental.
E The mother did not understand the joke.

Phillis Wheatley (c. 1753-1784)

Given the hardships of life in early America, it is ironic that some of the best poetry of the period was written by an exceptional slave woman. The first African-American author of importance in the United States, Phillis Wheatley was born in Africa and brought to Boston, Massachusetts, when she was about seven, where she was purchased by the pious and wealthy tailor John Wheatley to be a companion for his wife. The Wheatleys recognized Phillis’s remarkable intelligence and, with the help of their daughter, Mary, Phillis learned to read and write.

Wheatley’s poetic themes are religious, and her style is neoclassical. Her poem To S. M., a Young African Painter, on seeing His Works unsettles some contemporary critics—whites because they find it conventional, and blacks because the poem does not protest the immorality of slavery. Wheatley was the first to address white racism and spiritual equality confidently in verse in another poem, On Being Brought from Africa to America.

This text refers to questions 38 and 39.

He drank his way across the narrow sea. The ship was small, his cabin smaller, but the captain would not allow him abovedeck. The rocking of the deck beneath his feet made his stomach heave, and the wretched food tasted even worse when retched back up. But why did he need salt beef, hard cheese, and bread crawling with worms when he had wine to nourish him? It was red and sour, very strong. Sometimes he heaved the wine up too, but there was always more.

“The world is full of wine,” he muttered in the dankness of his cabin. His father never had any use for drunkards, but what did that matter? His father was dead. He’d killed him.

QUESTÃO 38

Based on the text above, choose the only correct option.

- The character was afraid to disappoint his father.
- The sentence He drank his way across the narrow sea (f.1) indicates that the character was sober the whole trip.
- The character could be on the top level of the ship.
- It can be inferred that the bread was rotten.
- It was the food, not the movement of the ship, that made the character feel sick.

QUESTÃO 39

Based on the text above, chose the correct option.

- It can be inferred that “wretched” (f.4) has a positive meaning.
- Food would come back from the character’s is stomach, but not wine.
- The character believes he cannot substitute food for wine.
- The character’s cabin was short of light.
- The word “rocking” (f.3) refers to the movement of the ship.

QUESTÃO 40

Act 1 Scene 1
Thunder and lightning. Enter three Witches.
FIRST WITCH When shall we three meet again?
    In thunder, lightning, or in rain?
SECOND WITCH When the hurly-burly’s done.
    When the battle’s lost and won.
THIRD WITCH That will be ere the set of sun.
    FIRST WITCH Where the place?
SECOND WITCH Upon the heath.
    THIRD WITCH There to meet with MacBeth.
    FIRST WITCH I come, Grey Malkin.
SECOND WITCH Paddock calls.
    THIRD WITCH Annon.
ALL Fair is foul, and foul is fair:
    Hover through the fog and filthy air.

According to Longman Dictionary, genre is a particular type of art, writing, music, etc., which has certain features that all examples of this type share. Considering this definition, choose the option that states the genre of the text above.

- play
- short story
- poem
- fiction novel
- romance novel

This text refers to questions 41 and 42.

The United States is one of the most diverse nations in the world. Its dynamic population of about 300 million boasts more than 30 million foreign-born individuals who speak numerous languages and dialects. Some one million new immigrants arrive each year, many from Asia and Latin America.

Literature in the U.S today is likewise dazzlingly diverse, exciting, and evolving. New voices have arisen from many quarters, challenging old ideas and adapting literary traditions to suit changing conditions of the national life. Social and economic advances have enabled previously underrepresented groups to express themselves more fully.

It is clear that American literature at the turn of the 21st century has become democratic and heterogeneous. Regionalism has flowered, and international, or “global”, writers refract U.S culture through foreign perspectives.

Kathryn Vanspanckeren. Outline of American Culture. Revised edition. Published by the United States Department of State. 1994

QUESTÃO 41

According to the text above, choose the correct option.

- There has not been any immigration in the United States in the late 20th century.
- Literature in the U.S today is not as dazzlingly diverse, exciting and evolving as in the past.
- Literary traditions were adapted because the conditions of the national life had been changing.
- The United States is the most diverse nation in the world.
- Less than 5% of U.S population is foreign-born individuals.

QUESTÃO 42

Choose the correct option according to the text above.

- The diversity of the American population has had a positive influence in American literature.
- Underrepresented groups option express themselves fully.
- Immigrants have had no part in the American literature.
- International writers are not suitable to write about the United States culture.
- American literature at the turn of the 21st century is still restricted to few American.
QUESTÃO 43

My heart laps up when I behold
A rainbow in the sky:
So was it when my life began;
So it is now I am a man;
So be it when I shall grow old,
Or let me die!
The child is Father of the Man;
And I could wish my days to be
Bound each to each by natural piety

Based on Wordsworth’s poem above, choose the option that best describes what the poem is about.

A god and His work on mankind
B growing old and not forgetting the things that make you happy
C a man’s death wish
D the effect of a rainbow on people’s beliefs
E small things that affect father and son relationship forever

---

QUESTÃO 44

In “who call themselves” (l.1), “who” is

A a conjunction.
B a relative pronoun.
C an object pronoun.
D an interrogative pronoun.
E a preposition.

---

QUESTÃO 45

The word “But” (l.5) is

A a conjunction.
B a noun.
C a pronoun.
D an adjective.
E a preposition.

---

QUESTÃO 46

The noun “illiteracy” in “the cycle of illiteracy” (l.6-7)

A is composed of a suffix.
B is composed of a prefix.
C is composed of two prefixes.
D is composed of a prefix and a suffix.
E has no affixes.

---

QUESTÃO 47

The verb form “written” in “written in simple, conversational prose” (l.8-9) is in the

A simple past.
B imperative.
C simple future.
D past participle.
E simple present.

---

QUESTÃO 48

In the sentence “The rainbow troops must constantly defend their extremely poor school against plans to close it” (l.15-16), the modal verb “must” expresses

A permission.
B suggestion.
C recommendation.
D necessity.
E prohibition.
This text refers to questions from 49 through 56.

The E-Factor
Good news! We can all develop the quality that can make you happy, successful – even thin!

When I first met my friend Carol, I was convinced she was the luckiest woman alive. It seems like everything in her world is always wonderful. She describes her husband as “the greatest guy you could meet” and her job as “fantastic”! When she talks about places she’s been or people she’s met, she uses words like awesome, fabulous and terrific.

But over the years as I’ve gotten to know her better, I’ve realized that Carol is no luckier than anyone else. Like all of us, she has her ups and downs too. But what is special about her is her attitude. No matter what happens, Carol looks at the bright side. She is able to remain positive, energetic, vivacious. She’s absolutely and totally enthusiastic!

In the beginning, I asked myself: “How can anyone be happy all the time?” But, now, I admire this character trait. It works for her. She does well at work, has lots of friends and she really seems to enjoy what she’s doing. I truly think she will always be full of enthusiasm!

Karen Blanchard and Christine Root. For Your Information. Longman, 2000, Unit 8 (adapted).

QUESTÃO 49
In the clause “When I first met my friend Carol” (t.1), the verbal form is in the

- past participle.
- simple future.
- present perfect tense.
- simple past tense.
- simple present.

QUESTÃO 50
If the clause “she was the luckiest woman alive” (t.2) had been used in the simple present tense, the verbal form “was” should be replaced by

- am.
- are.
- has.
- were.
- is.

QUESTÃO 51
In the clause ‘the greatest guy you could meet’ (t.4), the modal verb “could” expresses

- possibility.
- suggestion.
- recommendation.
- prohibition.
- permission.

QUESTÃO 52
The clauses in “places she’s been or people she’s met” (t.5) are in the

- past perfect.
- simple present.
- simple past.
- imperative.
- present perfect.

QUESTÃO 53
The words “awesome”, “fabulous” and “terrific” (t.6) are

- adjectives.
- prepositions.
- conjunctions.
- nouns.
- verbs.

QUESTÃO 54
In the clause “But over the years as I’ve gotten to know her better” (t.7), “better” is the irregular comparative form of

- well.
- nice.
- bad.
- old.
- hard.
In “But over the years as I’ve gotten to know her better” (l.7) “I” and “her” are respectively

A a relative pronoun and a subject pronoun.
B an object pronoun and a subject pronoun.
C a subject pronoun and an object pronoun.
D a possessive pronoun and a subjective pronoun.
E an object pronoun and a possessive pronoun.

In the sentence “I truly think she will always be full of enthusiasm!” (l.16-17), “will” is

A the auxiliary verb of the simple future.
B the auxiliary verb of the past continuous.
C in the past form.
D in the imperative.
E the principal verb of the sentence.

This text refers to questions 57 and 58.

Education Standards
Only a few countries are teaching children how to think

A traditional company in Oaklahoma, USA, has been making pies and biscuits since the 1920s. But they are having a lot of problems to find candidates with the skills to fill even the most basic factory jobs. Such posts require workers to think critically, but graduates of local schools are often unable to read or do simple maths. That’s why they recently decided to open a new factory in Poland — its first in Europe. “We hear that there are a lot of educated people in Poland”, explains Paula Marshal, the company’s boss.

Poland’s made some dramatic gains in education in the past decade, and now international rankings put the country’s students well ahead of America’s in science and maths. What’s Poland doing right? And what’s America doing wrong?

In the sentence “A traditional company in Oaklahoma, USA, has been making pies and biscuits since the 1920s.” (l.1-2), “has been making” expresses

A an action that started in the past but is still a present fact.
B a habit, a routine.
C an action that will finish in the near future.
D an action that happened in the 19th century.
E an action that started and finished in the past.

It is a myth that all it takes to write is to sit down in front of a blank page, to begin at the beginning and write through to the end, with no planning, break, editing, or changes in between. And yet, this is sometimes what we ask our students to do. Good writers plan and revise, rearrange and delete text, re-reading and producing multiple drafts before they come up with their finished document. This is what a process writing approach is about.

Internet: <www.teachingenglish.org.uk> (adapted)

Based on the text, it can be concluded that

A feedback should only be provided at the end of the task after students hand in their compositions to be marked.
B in the writing class teachers should take into account the learners’ purposes for writing, which transcend that of producing texts for teacher evaluation.
C the main focus when a writing task is assigned is on the final product.
D teachers should assign students a writing topic and then collect the finished product for correction without intervening in the writing process itself.
E focusing on language errors improves grammatical accuracy and writing fluency.
The current interest in the role of culture in language teaching is due to a number of factors. Both in Europe and in the U.S., albeit for different reasons, there is a great deal of political pressure now put on foreign language educators to help solve the social and economic problems of our time. Educators fear that the mere acquisition of linguistic systems is no guarantee of international peace and understanding. After years of communicative euphoria, some language teachers are becoming dissatisfied with purely functional uses of language. Some are pleading to supplement the traditional acquisition of “communication skills” with some intellectually legitimate, humanistically oriented, cultural “content”. Others, who teach their language to non-native speaker immigrants, are under pressure to absorb (read: acculturate) into their society growing numbers of newcomers. And there is of course the recrudescence of nationalism around the world that draws political capital from increased links between national languages and national cultures. The reasons for the growing “culturalisation” of language teaching are many, the motives often contradictory.

According to the text, it is correct to affirm that

- there has been a growing interest in the teaching of functional skills.
- non-native speaker immigrants have been under pressure to adopt a different culture due to its political relevance.
- culture and language are closely related.
- foreign language educators are the ones who will solve the social and economic problems of our time.
- the acquisition of linguistic systems shall promote international peace and understanding.

In the text, the word “current” (1.1) means

- worldwide.
- local.
- present.
- widespread.
- restricted.

The word “albeit” (1.3) is synonymous with

- nevertheless.
- moreover.
- although.
- furthermore.
- undoubtedly.

Language programs that focus on alternative assessment are likely to instill in students lifelong skills related to critical thinking that build a basis for future learning, and enable them to evaluate what they learn both in and outside of the language class.

Based on prevailing theoretical assumptions on language learning assessment, it is correct to affirm that

- self-assessment is not recommended due to subjectivity.
- assessment is an ongoing strategy through which students are involved in making decisions about the degree to which their performance matches their ability.
- portfolio assessment has increasingly been accepted as an evaluation tool in teacher-oriented instructional systems.
- assessment practices, in contemporary language teaching, should be characterized by standardized tests designed and graded by outside authorities.
- language learning assessment should be based on behaviorist views of cognition and development.

According to contemporary theories on language learning assessment,

- the teacher should bring together the range of information collected from students’ responses, and determine how to act upon it in ways that will improve students’ understanding and further learning.
- the quality of student writing must be assessed through the use of indirect tests of usage and mechanics.
- language learning assessment is conceived as the process of assessing governing language forms.
- assessment of language learning can be understood as evaluating the product of studying.
- assessment for learning is any assessment designed primarily to serve the purposes of accountability or of ranking or of certifying competence.
An understanding of language as open, dynamic and constantly evolving encompasses the rich complexities of communication. Language is not a thing to be studied but a way of seeing, understanding and communicating about the world and each language user uses his or her language(s) differently to do this. Language is something that people do in their daily lives and something they use to express, create and interpret meanings and to establish and maintain social and interpersonal relationships. Teachers who view language simply as code make acquiring grammar and vocabulary the primary, if not the only, goal of language learning. Within such a limited approach, students do not begin to engage with language as a communicative reality but simply as an intellectual exercise.

Learning language as a complex, personal communication system involves ongoing investigation of language. This requires learners to engage in analysis and in talking analytically about language. The emphasis on analysis assumes that learners are involved in learning which promotes exploration and discovery rather than only being passive recipients of knowledge.

Understanding the nature of the relationship between language and culture is central to the process of learning another language. In actual language use, it is language in its cultural context that creates meaning: creating and interpreting meaning is done within a cultural framework. This means that in the language classroom it is not just a question of learners developing knowledge about another culture but of learners coming to understand themselves in relation to some other culture. Learning to be intercultural requires much more than just knowing about another culture: it involves learning to understand how one’s own culture shapes perceptions of oneself, of the world, and of our relationship with others.

Based on the text, it is correct to infer that

A. rather than a social practice in which individuals participate, language is simply a body of knowledge to be learnt.
B. the goal of learning is to make learners challenge their own culture-based assumptions.
C. acquiring grammar and vocabulary should be the primary goal in language learning.
D. the communicative approach of teaching languages is limited.
E. learners should be seen not only as users but also as analysers of language.

The expression “rather than” (l.20) is the same as

A. slightly.
B. instead of.
C. to some extent.
D. more correctly.
E. quite.

The word “actual” (l.24) is synonymous with

A. non-verbal.
B. target.
C. native.
D. real.
E. made-up.

There is no one answer to the question of how to teach writing in English Foreign Language classes. There are as many answers as there are teachers and teaching styles, or learners and learning styles. Writing means writing a connected text and the process of writing is a valuable tool for all of our students.

Choose the correct option concerning the process approach to the teaching of writing.

A. Teachers should consider organization while also working on grammar and syntax.
B. Students should be given time to try out ideas and feedback on the content of what they write in their drafts.
C. Students should be first given sentence exercises, then paragraphs to copy or manipulate grammatically by changing questions to statements.
D. Only after reaching a high intermediate or advanced level of proficiency are students allowed to try some free compositions.
E. Teachers should stress quantity of writing rather than quality.
QUESTÃO 69

Considering that responding to students’ writing is very much a part of the process of teaching writing, choose the correct option about the theory concerning the way teachers should respond to students’ writing in the process writing approach.

A In responding to students’ writings, teachers should mark all errors, even those which do not interfere with communication.

B Responding to students’ writing is a task which should be tacked onto the end of a teaching sequence only.

C Rewriting, editing and proofreading are common patterns of sequence in writing classes.

D In responding to a student’s piece of writing, the teacher’s main job is to pass judgment on its quality.

E Errors in writing constitute one of the biggest problems of composition teaching.

QUESTÃO 70

Based on the Parâmetros Curriculares Nacionais issued by the Brazilian Ministry of Education and Culture in 1998 (Secretaria de Educação Fundamental, 1998), choose the correct option.

A The policies presented in the publication do not comprise the development of critical thinking.

B The document proposes a curriculum which provides students with opportunities for acting in the world through discourses mainly offered by their mother tongue.

C According to the new curricular parameters, language use is essentially determined by its sociointeractional nature, and meaning is dialogic.

D The document focuses on traditional pedagogies by investing in the development of multicultural principles that can inform pedagogic work.

E The document emphasizes skills development and focuses on standardized content.

This text refers to questions from 71 through 73.

The political, economic and cultural interdependence of the world today demands a crossing of language and national barriers in the earliest phases of schooling. Primary education must become more international-minded. Our basic concept of literacy may have to be modified so as to include — besides the learning of reading and writing the vernacular — the acquisition of another language.

The consequences of current neurophysiological views on the teaching of a second language deserve serious consideration. From this point of view it would seem that the earlier the start the better the acquisition of the basic neuromuscular skills involved.

Psychologically there is also much to be said for an early introduction to a second language. A child’s enormous potential in respect of the sounds of a language and his/her great capacity for assimilating other linguistic structures can be regarded as assets which would be foolish to waste. Recent studies of bilingualism, on the whole, seem to strengthen the argument for an early start. The common fears that a second language is detrimental to the development of the first language, to intellectual growth, or to general school attainments are not supported by current evidence.

Internet: <http://unesdoc.unesco.org> (adapted)

QUESTÃO 71

Based on the text, it is correct to infer that

A learning languages at later stages in life is invalidated if we consider the special advantages of early learning.

B bilingualism has a negative impact on language development of the first language.

C the teaching of second languages to children of primary school age is merely a fashion.

D there is a strong argument for the benefits of learning a second language early in life.

E learning to read and write in a foreign language is detrimental to general school attainments.

QUESTÃO 72

In the text,

A “on the whole” (l.18) expresses the idea of partiality.

B “attainments” (l.22) is synonymous with admissions.

C “may” (l.5) expresses the idea of possibility.

D “assets” (l.17) is expresses the same as drawbacks.

E “besides” (l.6) means in contrast with.

QUESTÃO 73

In the text, the word “detrimental” (l.20) means

A damaging.

B helpful.

C useful.

D wholesome.

E expedient.
There seems to be an ever-growing gap between what is taught and learned in relation to the English language in regular schools and language schools in Brazil. By the first half of the twentieth century, the legislation emphasized the practical aspects of learning a foreign language. However, as there was little time dedicated to the teaching of foreign languages and few prepared teachers, the practical aspects of mastering a foreign language were not applied. According to the Lei de Diretrizes e Bases (Brazilian educational laws), enacted in 1996, foreign language teaching became mandatory. Since then, the Ministry of Education does not decide that English is the foreign language taught, being the choice up to each school. Nevertheless, English is the main foreign language in the country. The PCNs (Parâmetros Curriculares Nacionais), which are references for Elementary and High School teaching proposed by the Brazilian Ministry of Education, refer to this situation (Brasil 1998, p. 19): Even though the knowledge of foreign languages is highly looked upon by society, these foreign languages, as subjects, find themselves out of place in schools. The dissemination of language schools is clear evidence for such affirmation.

QUESTÃO 74

It is correct to infer from the text that

A. despite the little time dedicated to the teaching of foreign languages, the practical aspects of knowing a foreign language have been successfully applied in Brazilian schools.
B. Brazilian legislation established that the study of English as a foreign language had to be compulsory from 1996 onwards.
C. many deficiencies in the teaching of English in Brazilian schools persist in spite of improved textbooks, better training of teachers and the use of audio-visual aids.
D. the broad aim of the teaching of English in Brazilian schools should be to give each child a new means of communication.
E. regular school teaching is less effective than the learning experience students gain when attending classes at language schools in Brazil.

QUESTÃO 75

Without much change in the original meaning of the text, the word “gap” (§1.1) could be correctly replaced by

A. charge.
B. dispute.
C. imbalance.
D. duty.
E. claim.

QUESTÃO 76

The word “Nevertheless” (§13) expresses the idea of

A. contrast.
B. consequence.
C. conclusion.
D. comparison.
E. addition.

QUESTÃO 77

The word “mandatory” (§10) is the same as

A. compulsory.
B. unconstrained.
C. voluntary.
D. unnecessary.
E. discretionary.

QUESTÃO 78

The Parâmetros Curriculares Nacionais issued by the Brazilian Ministry of Education and Culture states that

A. the teaching of foreign languages, as it happens in relation to other subjects, is the school’s responsibility, and it is there that it should take place.
B. the language curriculum should focus on the development of as many skills related to the target language as possible, thus preparing students for college admission exams.
C. teachers should emphasize the teaching of writing in detriment to other abilities, due to the few opportunities the population has to use foreign languages as an instrument for oral communication, inside or outside the country.
D. teachers should enable students to develop oral abilities as well as reading and writing.
E. the focus on teaching students how to develop their writing abilities in the foreign language could serve purposes, such as helping them overcome difficulties they may be facing in their own language when it comes to reading tasks.
This text refers to questions 79 and 80.

Linguists and anthropologists have long recognized that the forms and uses of a given language reflect the cultural values of the society in which the language is spoken. Linguistic competence alone is not enough for learners of a language to be competent in that language. Language learners need to be aware, for example, of the culturally appropriate ways to address people, express gratitude, make requests, and agree or disagree with someone. They should know that behaviors and intonation patterns that are appropriate in their own speech community may be perceived differently by members of the target language speech community. They have to understand that, in order for communication to be successful, language use must be associated with other culturally appropriate behavior. Cultural information should be presented in a nonjudgmental fashion, in a way that does not place value or judgment on distinctions between the students’ native culture and the culture explored in the classroom. Culture must be fully incorporated as a vital component of language learning. Students can be successful in speaking a second language only if cultural issues are an inherent part of the curriculum.

QUESTÃO 79

It is correct to infer from the text that

A. the learning goal in the teaching of culture is the memorization of cultural facts.
B. language function is not independent of the context in which it is used.
C. the nature and extent of students’ cultural competence is more important than their linguistic competence.
D. the culture of the student rarely has attributes which can be carried across to the foreign language culture.
E. culture should be understood as a relatively static entity made up of accumulated, classifiable, observable, thus eminently teachable and learnable facts.

QUESTÃO 80

The word “given” (l.1) expresses the same idea expressed by

A. unknown.
B. specified.
C. unacknowledged.
D. authentic.
E. widely recognized.